

Cindy Light

Thirteen years ago, Cindy came to America not knowing a word of English. All she had was one suitcase, two hands and a heart filled with her American dreams.

Today, she is a cross-cultural communication expert, business consultant, and an author of an upcoming book about Chinese culture and its impact on business communication.

Cindy graduated from Peking University, the Harvard of China in 1984. She started her career as an assistant professor in China's top business school. Later, she became the director of public relations and marketing for a huge beer company. In 1991, Cindy was handpicked by the Chinese Government as a policy consultant helping foreigners set up their businesses in China.

Cindy has more than 25 years of business experience in both China and the United States. She has been a speaker for corporations, associations, as well as featured on TV, radio shows and international conferences in both China and America.

CindyLight.net
404-988-9655
LittleBigSmile@gmail.com